DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1 and 8 recite, "selecting the parts of said items" and "according to said selected items". First, there is not antecedent basis for "said items". Second, it is the parts that are selected, not the items, which leaves no antecedent basis for the selected items.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000.

Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Downs et al.

Downs shows, section IX, columns 70-79, an electronic digital content store 103 (first device, providing merchandise) displays price and description of electronic content 113. The end-user device 109 (second device), columns 79-89, is able to evaluate and select electronic content. The store and the end-user communicate via the Internet (includes wire and wireless). The end-user device can, upon request, download self-installing applications, mainly player application 195, which is designed for customization by being based on software object. (column 86, lines 26-27)

Merchandise is outputted via secure container (SC, columns 24-39) and includes an expiration date (column 25, line 29). Product Ids (serial numbers) are used to identify the particular electronic content selected. The store has many functions that interact with the web server's (code or identification inherent) commerce services to create and download to the end-user device the files necessary to initiate the content download process. They also handle optional interactions to provide authorizations (codes) and accept notifications of completion of activities. (column 72, lines 54-59)

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 6/27/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant asserts Downs does not show "customizing said merchandise according to said selected items". The examiner does not concur. Please re-read the rejection. Webster defines merchandise as "the commodities or goods that are bought and sold in business". This appears to be the source of miscommunication because applicant asserts that merchandise is package software. This is not in the claims.

The action is non-final because the examiner forgot to include claims 16-20 in the first action. It should also be noted that software is usually licensed, not sold. (Just in case that this comes up in prosecution.)
